

THE RECORDINGS OF
ROSA HENDERSON

An Annotated Tentative Personnelo - Discography

HENDERSON, Rosa, née Deschamps, singer born: Kentucky, 24th November 1896; died: New York City, 6th April 1968
 Not related to Fletcher or Edmonia Henderson. In 1913 began touring with her uncle's carnival troupe (mainly in Texas) until 1918. Married 'Slim' Henderson and toured for several years in the Mason-Henderson Show. During the 1920s was featured in several New York musical comedies. Began prolific recording career in 1923 – some of her records being reissued under various pseudonyms: Flora Dale, Mamie Harris, Sarah Johnson, Sally Ritz, Josephine Thomas, and Gladys White. Left the profession in the late 1920s, played occasional engagements during the 1930s, but worked for many years in a New York department store. During the 1960s sang occasionally at charity benefits. (John Chilton, Jazz Who of Jazz)

Rosa Henderson is accompanied here by a full-bodied piano player of the Eubie Blake/Lucky Roberts generation, playing convincingly in a late ragtime manner showing traces of early Harlem stride.

This seems to be the only issued appearance of Wen Talbert on record. Wen Talbert was a bandleader – probably hailing from Chicago – playing shows in premises like the Lafayette Theater of Harlem. Very little is known of him, and two recording sessions in 1926/7 for Vocalion and Gennett have never been issued, although there might exist tests of the Vocalion session (see Rust*6). For Wen Talbert see Storyville 87-97,98 (Barclay Draper) and Storyville 1998/9-182 and 2002/3-216.

Just like the pianist on the first session above Mr. Talbert also is very much ragtime oriented. Yet, he lacks the very strong left hand of the former piano player. In accompaniment he tends to use simple four-four rhythm in both hands. He is not a representative of Harlem stride style.

To my ears the above personnel as listed by Walter C. Allen seems to be correct and is therefore not disputed or discussed. The bass sax is much less agile and much less distinct than on the session by Henderson's Hot Six of June 11, 1923, where I assume it to be played by Coleman Hawkins, thus here probably Billy Fowler. The bass sax triplets in bar 11 of the second verse might be a hint to Fowler's presence as presumed in my research on the early Henderson band.

Rosa Henderson accompanied here by a white big band of the time. The whole affair is not swinging, but rather pedestrian. The here listed personnel is the one of Rust*6. As can be seen from the below list there seems to have been a long procedure to find out the right musicians. Surprisingly the rhythm section delivers a strong four-four basement.

Fletcher Henderson and Coleman Hawkins as accompanists noted on the label, therefore no reason to assume anybody else. But this then is a strong hint as to Hawkins' importance for the Henderson aggregation that early! Hawkins had left the Mamie Smith band in early 1923 to freelance in New York. But he was engaged on a firm basis by Henderson not earlier than August 1923. (There seems to have been some dates where Hawkins had been hired for recording purposes. I believe to hear him on the sessions of June 11 and June 28, 1923.) While Henderson usually used trumpet/cornet soloists when accompanying singers, this seems to be the first time a single saxophone has been used.

- WCAllen p73: Fletcher Henderson piano. “Note that some pressings, presumably the earlier ones, erroneously list Hawkins’ name on the label for this side. The explanation may lie in a story which Jean de Dobbeleer, of Belgium, recalled reading in a 1936 Paris newspaper. Hawkins was quoted as recalling that he once had to send his sax out for an adjustment during a blues recording session with Henderson. While his horn was being fixed, thy tried a rehearsal cut; the engineer said it was a good master, so they never did use Hawk as a player. He had appeared at the studio, however, and his name may have been entered into the recording ledgers and thus scheduled for the label printers.”

After some “to and fro” with Bob Hitchens and Mark Berresford and subsequent intense listening I have to admit that both are very probably right in associating Howard Scott and Fletcher Henderson with this recording. Scott had just been added to the Henderson band for hot solo trumpet. What heard of him here is easily compatible with what he plays on later vocal accompaniments, as well as his solo outings in the Henderson band context. This then would point to Henderson’s own participation here, and the piano style heard is much in Henderson’s capacity and power.

I now regard this trumpet player as very probably Howard Scott, recent hot soloist of the Fletcher Henderson band.. For information, here is what I had written before:

This – as by Rust – is the first Rosa Henderson recording with a single accompanying trumpet/cornet and – to my ears – very probably is the session described in Rex Stewart’s “Jazz Masters of the 30’s” p. 29. Although Stewart’s date is “in 1922”, he is certainly in error as Henderson started to record not before 1923. There are some notes definitely squeezed in Stewart’s very own way and can be heard in the first title at 0:09 and 0:23 min. Cornet playing is much better than Th. Morris and at least probably in Stewart’s developing personal style. Howard Scott – as assumed by some listeners here - did play much more after Johnny Dunn at the time he joined Henderson (ca. Oct. 1923)! This was Rex Stewart’s first recording session ever.

Bob Hitchens, Rex Stewart’s Recording Debut

Rosa Henderson recorded for Pathe in mid December 1923 with trumpet and piano accompaniment. The very reasonable proposal has been made that this is the debut session mentioned by Rex in “Jazz Masters of the ‘30s”, page 29. Here he states that he was hired by pianist Louis Hooper and found himself accompanying Rosa Henderson in a studio high up in a tall building. He mentions that he had taken the subway to Columbus Circle. Rex does not mention the date nor the name of the recording company.

The problem was that to several pairs of informed ears those recordings did not feature Rex nor Hooper.

The majority of Rosa’s recordings with Hooper were made for Ajax. From January 1924 Ajax’ studios were at 240 West 55th Street (from W.R. Bryant’s Ajax label listing). Google provided the address for Pathe from 1914 as 18 West 42nd Street. It also identified Columbus Circle as the south west corner of Central Park on West 59th Street. Clearly Rex was aiming at Ajax when he left the subway.

Rosa’s ensuing Ajax sessions were:

Mtx 31607 Harry Smith tp, poss Cliff Jackson p. K-B Rau asks “who is Harry Smith?” The only references I have found is Duke Ellington quotes in “Hear Me Talkin’ To Ya” page 169 stating that Count Basie was playing alongside Harry Smith at Leroy’s and touring with Gonzelle White. K-B Rau suggests this record has Joe Smith tp. Whatever, it is certainly not Rex.

Mtx 31636 Rex Stewart cnt, Bob Fuller cl, Cliff Jackson p. This could be Rex’ debut, but if so the piano must be Hooper and it doesn’t sound right for him. It does sound like the man on 31607.

Mtx 31675 not Rex cnt, Cliff Jackson p.

Mtx 31790 probably Rex cnt, Fuller cl, Hooper p, Elmer Snowden bj. Recorded February or March 1925.

Mtx 31795 Rex cnt, Jake Frazier tb, Louis Hooper p. Similar date to last.

It seems we are mistaken about a pianist’s identity or alternatively Rex’s debut was never issued or is now lost. I favour the latter and suggest the lost session preceded Mtx 31636 and took place in June or July 1924.

Notes:

- RR77-6, RR86: Thomas Morris, Louis Hooper

- BGR*2,*3,*4: Tom Morris, c; Louis Hooper, p.

- Rust*3,*4,*6: Tom Morris –c; unknown p

- VJM 175, Bob Hitchens, Choo Choo Jazzers: “R. Rains: definitely not T. Morris, sounds like Howard Scott. M. Berresford: Scott, prob Fletcher Henderson. Only listed here because BGR showed Louis Hooper. KBR suggests Rex Stewart, L. Hooper referring to R. Stewart’s statement on p. 29 of “Jazz Masters of the 30s” that this was his first recording (date not mentioned). I hear neither R. Stewart nor L. Hooper here and I suggest this may refer to Rosa’s July ^1924 session or to a lost session.”

Fletcher Henderson as accompanist noted on the label, therefore no reason to assume anybody else. Joe Smith still under the spell of Johnny Dunn, but obviously developing his own later very personal style! I admit that this is not the Joe Smith we all know from later recordings by Fletcher Henderson or McKinney's Cotton Pickers, but what we hear here certainly complies with what we know of him from Mamie Smith recordings.

Porter Grainger's personal style seems to be that he does not own any. His accompaniments – as on other recordings – show him playing most simple chordal four-four parts – mostly without any melodic embellishments. My observations regarding this stylistic peculiarity would indicate his presence here. Lincoln Conaway is listed discographically as the definite steel-guitar player on this session, as well as on other sessions in early 1924, mostly together with Porter Grainger – as with Dolly Perkins, Clara Smith and Lena Wilson as with Bessie Smith in 1927. Supposing that we really hear him on this session, we have to say that he does not play any distinct functional accompaniment on his steel-guitar here, but that he mainly doubles the melody notes as sung by Rosa Henderson.

 31607 I Can't Get The One I Want Ajax 17049, Document DOCD-5402

Who is Harry Smith? Rust*6 index lists him twice: as a clarinet player with one Peggy Dell in London in 1935 (page 437), and as a cornetist for this title. But does anybody really know anything about him. And who did list him for this session? How can a player as accomplished as this one remain otherwise unnoticed? Stylistically and tonally I would certainly identify this player as Joe Smith, and Walter C. Allen's notice

(Hendersonia, p. 570) might give a hint to this player's queer staccato phrasing in this title: "He had a talent for mimicry on the trumpet – on various recordings, he essays the styles of Johnny Dunn (an important early influence on him!), Howard Scott, Louis Armstrong, and Tommy Ladnier." And so, my conclusion was: very probably Joe Smith! But now – after having listened very carefully to this player and having received information from Bob Hitchens that Todd B. Weeks' book 'Luck's In My Corner, The Life and Music of Hot Lips Page' declares this trumpet player to be Harry Smith. Although there is no source for this information given, I have accepted it and now believe him to be this legendary player from the West. But as we shall see later on, this decision will have some consequences!

The piano player did not seem to be Cliff Jackson to me as none of his characteristics are obvious on this side. Yet, as Jackson seems to have been used by Ajax more often, it might nevertheless be him. And the lack of his licks might be due to his youth at the time of recording. A comparison to Mike Jackson's style results in favour of Cliff! No clarinet on this side.

St 87/93 reports that Barclay Draper was playing with Cliff Jackson in spring 1924. KBR doubts Harry Smith & Cliff Jackson.
- VJM 177, Bob Hitchens, The Choo Choo Jazzers: "Distinct trumpet style, no clarinet, probably Cliff Jackson (not quite sure). Harry Smith was named by Hot Lips Page as an early influence. Mainly Texas based, he nonetheless was associated with Gonzelle White's group along with Jake Frazier and Gus Aiken. So it is quite possible that he was in New York at this time, but I know of no press reports to substantiate this. Lip's biography, "Luck's In My corner" by Todd Bryant Weeks gives good coverage to Harry Smith. Weeks does not mention his source other than Rust, and Rust of course did not record his source. So we must take this identification on trust, recognising that Rust will not have dreamed this up. The reference (in part 1 of this list in VJM 175) to Barclay Draper working with Cliff Jackson, while true, is irrelevant here."

This very probably is the "Harry Smith" of the session above (playing a lot of jumping trills and finishing the tunes on the flatted seventh at both sessions!), who in my ears is the early Joe Smith! It, yet, may be the Harry Smith of Gonzelle White fame, having toured Cuba with her in 1923. But lacking any documentation of this player's style – there very probably are no recordings known of him – I would rather be inclined to attribute these two titles to the Joe Smith. It would be very interesting to get to know who proposed the name of Harry Smith for this session and session 038, and what the reasons were for his assumption!

Fuller is undisputed. As before: I do not hear Cliff Jackson's playing characteristics – and see the probability of Mike Jackson playing. Significant are the flowery treble figures played over a not very distinct stride left-hand rhythm. Thus not Cliff Jackson nor Louis Hooper.

I hear Metcalf with his mushy tone, bending notes and his off-time phrasing with little Dunn influence, yet some Bubber Miley derived triplet effects, but he is not as rhythmically straight as Miley is. We hear a real stride piano player, and he might be Cliff Jackson. Yet, I do not hear Jackson's typical shifting of the meter, which is my criterion to identify him. A good and understandable description of Jackson's very personal stride style will be found in the booklet to Jazz Oracle BDW 8037 'Cliff Jackson and his Crazy Kats'. But on the strength of the very strong rhythmic playing this might be Cliff Jackson as listed. Or might Edgar Dowell be a possibility?

Just like at the subsequent session below, Miley's presence is seen as doubtful in the discos, and I strongly suggest Harry Smith to be the trumpet player. The trombonist does not play enough legato notes to ascertain Gregory and so might be Frazier. The pianist plays a blues/boogie related style, but more differentiated than Hooper, and might thus possibly be Ray.

I do hear Bubber Miley and Charlie Irvis! But is this really Bubber Miley? Drunk? Or another – less lively – player, trying to copy Miley? But I would like to refer to the Monette Moore (Susie Smith) on Ajax 17075 session as to both player's possible state of consciousness. I do not hear Fuller. But I do not hear Lorenzo Tio either as assumed for the Kansas City Five Pathe Actuelle session of late October 1924. The clarinetist sounds a bit familiar, but I do not know where to place him. Hooper is much doubted and should be re-thought of if Snowden's presence is accepted.

I would like to refer to Monette Moore's Vocalion session of 25 September, 1924 where she is accompanied by members of the John Montague band: To my ears this is the same band, even enlarged by the band's trombonist and an unknown banjo player. I believe strongly to recognize Rex Stewart and the band's clarinetist – whose name was Cecil Benjamin. Both men's interplay is comparable to that at the Vocalion session and the trombonist fits in perfectly. Therefore, and because of the temporal accordance I opt for the members of the contemporaneous Montague band.

This is what I have written some time ago: This is a very difficult record to determine. The trumpet player is much too reticent and owns too little tension to be Miley. He may possibly be Thomas Morris, but my listening companions have denied this. Of the trombonist much too little can be heard to determine his style and identity. Accepted that he is the same player as on the following session, this is not Frazier, but a legato player, yet not Charlie Irviss. The clarinet player has nothing of Fuller's style, melodically and per vibrato, and plays in a slow arpeggiated legato style with a wooden tone and slow vibrato. He may be found in Western circles. The pianist cannot be determined as he permanently plays rhythm in accordance with the banjo, so that his style is impossible to recognize. The banjo player's sound is much less brilliant than that of Snowden, lacks Snowden's embellishments, and plays a single-string accompaniment to the kazoo solo totally unaccustomed from Elmer Snowden in this manner. This accompanying band might possibly be searched for in another surrounding. There seems to be no connection to the Ajax recording personnel!

(Bob Hitchens' "Choo Choo Jazzers" research in VJM 175-3 still maintains the usually listed personnel as given below, against my own contribution and statement: "KBR hears a completely new set of musicians here. If that is wrong the regular musicians must all have been "under the weather". I myself doubt a recording session – particularly with Edison – with all musicians "under the weather"!)

Comparison of the issued takes on DOCD-5417 and IAJRC 49 (LP) do not show any differences. Their destination of takes must therefore be doubted and taken with care.

"The personnel for this Viola McCoy/Rosa Henderson session is listed in Rust as above, except that he has a question mark before BM and definitely Hooper on the Rosa Henderson title. To us it is definitely B. Miley aurally, and we agree about the identification of the others. The pianist is probably the same throughout, and Hooper seems the most likely one. Dixon-Godrich have Thomas Morris instead of B. Miley and "prob" before all the other names. They are even in doubt about the identity of the kazoo player, who is quite obviously Viola McCoy. IAJRC 49 lists 9861-B, and it is aurally the same take as on DOCD-5403."

What a wonderful Rex Stewart – after only listening for four months to Louis Armstrong in New York – with a much freer new phrasing. Great! And even Hooper is developing.

And then Bob Fuller with his dated clarinet playing, including this silly fast vibrato. But he, too, is developing. Unfortunately, he apparently had no New Orleans model to listen to. He is not a bad musician. He only did not recognize the evolution of jazz music and its direction.

I myself would probably not have identified Charlie Green here, and he certainly is difficult to determine. But a couple of his phrases and the overall sound make clear that this is Green as named in RR 77. His trombone playing showed a lot of different approaches depending on the musicians he worked with momentarily. He could be very crude and simple with singers and even brilliantly technical when with high class colleagues as on Henderson's Dixie Stompers session of April 6, 1928, where he is often mistaken for Jimmy Harrison.

The pianist might be Louis Hooper, but where is that banjo? It can definitely only be detected in the first title, and this player very probably is not Snowden as he does not show any arpeggios, trills or other gimmicks. He is a hard swinging and strong player and might be found with the likes of Buddy Christian.

If we only had records like this one! An investigation like the one the listener might be reading just now would be simply unnecessary!

Here we have Rex Stewart and Louis Hooper named on the record label and nobody has to wonder. Just like in session 119 Monette Moore this record is a perfect model to compare and judge others.

Yet, Rex Stewart is not as sharp-cut and brilliant as on other sessions tackled above. He is a bit exaggerated here. The ubiquitous booze might have been a trigger to it. But what a development he had made until this date – from session 001 on! At the date of this session he was just about to join the Fletcher Henderson band as successor to Louis Armstrong. And it is easy to see that he was an able and fitting substitute. If only his nerves would have endured this challenge! Also Hooper is a much better pianist now like at the beginning of our investigation.

This might be Thomas Morris, but did he really have this fast vibrato? Clarinet playing is exactly what we have got to know from Fuller now. In connection with Fuller – and stylistically – the pianist very probably is Louis Hooper. The tuba player is impossible to identify.

This is what my listening team had to say about this session a couple of years ago:

DB: nothing to indicate Tom but there is little exposed cornet. Tom's normal intros are not there but I would not totally exclude as possible. Clt sounds more like Fuller.

MR: Morris is possible, but were the other Musical Blackbirds related to session of the Five Musical Blackbirds? There is gaspipe clt.

A couple of relevant Harlem trumpet players of the time have been named by the discos as you might see below. But in listening I recognized that not one of the listed players was present here. First I suggested Louis Metcalf, following Rust. After comparing with earlier Metcalf sides I missed his dropping the tone at the end, and I opted for Rex Stewart. But further listening and Joerg Kuhfuss' objections against the fore mentioned players made me search for other trumpet players who might have recorded for Vocalion in June 1926. As a pleasant surprise I found Edwin Swayze (sic) who was touring in the East with the show Bamville Dandies at this time. Comparison brought strong similarities stylistically, and I am convinced now that this trumpet player here is Edwin "King" Swayze. (Compare the Sammy Lewis OK 8285 and Sammy Lewis and his Bamville Syncopators Vocalions and The Levee Serenaders!) Swayze himself is remembered by colleagues as "a terrific trumpeter whose idol was King Oliver – not Louis as most of us were trying to sound like" (Arcadia 2008 cover text). For Swayze's correct name see Storyville 78, p. 230.

Unfortunately, this result did not bear any hints as to the personality of the clarinet player with his very strong tone and rather hasty multi-toned phrasing. The way of playing made me think of a Caribbean musician as there were many of them living and playing in New York in these years, and I suggested Carmello Jari as a possibility. Also the erratic Arville Harris came to my mind. But to my next pleasant surprise it dawned on me that I heard the not-so-well esteemed Bob Fuller, who obviously had advanced and completed a remarkable development at this date. Comparison with the Three Jolly Miner sides verified my assumption. (But then, Fuller's presence with the New Orleans Blue Five has to be sincerely doubted.)

Cliff Jackson on piano with his steam-roller stride is absolutely certain!

KBR (N&N77) notes that this tpt does not fall away in tone at the end of notes as Metcalf had done on earlier recordings. He suggests that Edwin Swayzee fits the bill. But we have not heard from L. Metcalf for 18 months during which time he has been active in Harlem. A young musician is bound to develop his style in these circumstances. In the absence of any reference to Swayzee's involvement from contemporary media or in personal reminiscences by those who were there, I see no reason revise this personnel. I do agree that the same trumpet is heard on Rosa's next two issued sessions and on that of c. January 1927 (by which time Swayzee was in the mid-west with Trent)."

Aurally, as with the last session above, I recognize Swayze again, as well as Bob Fuller on clarinet. The rather unprofessional playing of the trombonist accords well with what can be heard from Oscar Hammond, trombonist of the Sammy Lewis Bamville Syncopators. And I think that he is the player. (The Bamville Syncopators' personnel of the time you might find in the last Storyville magazine Nos. 78, p.229 and 162, p. 240, or in Franz Hoffmann's compilations of "Jazz Advertised".) And again, very beautiful, strong and distinct Cliff Jackson.

This is the same personnel as with the last two sessions! Listen to Swayze's solo in "She Belongs To Me" and you will immediately hear that his style is derived from King Oliver. Might this be the reason for the fact that he is named Edwin "King" Swayze in the papers of the time? Even Fuller plays remarkably, yet not in the Western way we love to hear from Dodds or Noone. And it is distinctly Cliff Jackson, "The Terror", with his characteristic shifting the meter.

We hear the mysterious "Big Charlie" Thomas here. A very distinct and individual trumpet – or possibly cornet - player who suddenly appeared in Harlem, recorded a couple of very interesting and thrilling sides in the short run of a little over a year, and then disappeared again into oblivion. The story belonging to this player can be read in the CD booklet to the above Timeless CD. His personal existence is questioned by some people, but the reality of this player, documented in the coherence of his recordings, cannot be denied. These two takes of one title show very intensely the features of this player's individual style: a style surprisingly close to Louis Armstrong's of the time, feather-light phrasing with large interval jumps, a slim but beautiful tone and a strong and wide vibrato with the end altitude of the vibrato amplitude often rising upwards uncontrolled, and often using unfamiliar chord tones in his phrases. This is NOT Charlie Gaines!

The clarinetist obviously is the same musician as on the Vocalion sessions before. But I have to question Louis Hooper's presence. I hear a stride-oriented pianist with a rather strong left hand and would opt for possibly Cliff Jackson because of his rhythmic strength.

All editions of Rust have Demas Dean on trumpet for this session, and I did believe him until a couple of weeks ago! Yet, this trumpet player certainly is not Demas Dean – after several listening sessions of the Savoy Bearcats recordings! I certainly would like to know who started – and published – this assumption. Dean's playing is rooted in early Harlem style in performing almost exclusively 6/8 rhythms in his phrases – listen to the Savoy Bearcats, where Dean is responsible for all hot trumpet solos, Gilbert Paris being the straight first trumpet man. What we hear on this recording here is a beautiful trumpet accompaniment in early Armstrong style, and I dare to assign what we hear to the mysterious "Big Charlie" Thomas – perhaps on a bad day – as heard on the session of August 1926 above. Style, rhythm, vibrato and phrasing are all his, and I do not wonder why I was tempted to think of June Clark when working on my June Clark investigation some years ago. Unfortunately, the sound quality of the Document CD is very bad because of a rather worn source record. But if you turn up your amplifier you can easily hear Big Charlie Thomas' - or whatever his name was – characteristic play. And this is my third pleasant surprise!

The piano player's style is strong, yet not distinct, and I would rather opt for Cliff Jackson as on the Vocalion sides above than for Porter Grainger.

Piano playing here has too little power to be by Cliff Jackson – and there are absolutely none of his meter-shifts which are ubiquitous in his documented appearances, at least at this time. This trumpet player certainly is an accomplished player, but he does not have a real "hot" approach to his playing. His style is very simple rhythmically, consisting only of metrical rhythms – no off-beat at all – and no "hot" tonal forms as slurs, squeezed notes or blue notes. He may have been a good and reliable big band player, but he certainly is not one of the masters. By his style he is not recognizable. Certainly not Rex Stewart, Louis Metcalf or Thomas Morris!

The pianist only plays simple four-four rhythm without individual traces and can therefore not be identified. But he swings. Together with the piano sounds a banjo can be heard mixing its sounds with the piano at exactly the same pace.

The trombonist owns a very beautiful tone and vibrato and probably belongs to the young players of this instrument. In some instances he shows insecurities. I would not opt for Charlie Green as given by Hooper in RR. Yet, Green always is able for surprises. This player may have been drawn from one of the many bands busy in Harlem at the time. He does not seem to be one of the top players recognizable by their individuality. At least his individuality is not Green's as known from earlier recordings. Green in decline?

Louis Hooper names himself as pianist in RR 77. And although there are many cases where we have seen his self-naming to be wrong, I would not exclude his presence here. Certainly not Porter Grainger or Cliff Jackson.
